"Should fit." Requires a hammer.	Wrong revision. Confidence unchanged.	"It worked yesterday." So did I.	"One more thing." The afternoon disappears.	Missing tool is in the searcher's hand.
The part arrives after you make one.	Borrowed tool returns with a new personality.	Empty coffee pot. Suspects everywhere.	"I was about to." Sure you were.	Right box. Wrong part. Impressive.
The 10 mm socket has fucked off.	"Always done it this way." Discussion closed.	FREE SPACE Still on payroll.	A quick question qualifies for catering.	One repair develops dependents.
The bolt is round. The mood is not.	"Easy job." Said from a safe distance.	Marker as dry as the training budget.	The charger takes another unpaid vacation.	The spare is the one we broke last time.
Drawing upside down. Expert still talking.	Six supervisors watch one person work.	Apprentice is right. Nobody recovers.	Instructions discovered during cleanup.	Five minutes, my ass.
